GREAT NEED FOR THE BLACK WALNUT WOOD

The bureau of aircraft production of the War Department requests the widest possible publicity given to the vital need of black walnut for use in making airplane propeller blades and gun stock.

Gun stocks and airplane propellers are essential parts of war machinery. Black walnut trees are scattered different parts of the United States, growing in small groves and on the edges of the woods. It is the duty of the government, the owners of the trees have an opportunity to demonstrate their patriotism in a most practical and effective way.

A part only of the lumber produced from each can be used and the government cannot buy the trees which are located at Madison on cars and sent to place of destination by the ordinance department.

No trees which produce logs less than 12 inches in diameter should be cut as they do not yield material suitable for government use. Owners of black walnut trees can find out what they should do by writing to the National Association of Commerce, giving the number and length of logs which could be cut and wait further instructions. This item of news should be of special interest to the farmers and small town residents of southern and central Wisconsin and they should bring this matter to the attention of their friends and neighbors to help the government in locating trees and in getting their owners to get in touch with the proper authorities so that they may be listed. Already something has been done along this line by the local Boy Scouts, but now that a new appeal is issued it is possible a careful survey of the entire situation will be made and the trees listed and kept from being cut on account of the expense necessary.

If we had a fund provided by voluntary subscription to defray these expenses a more complete listing could be made. There should be a fund of from $1,200 to $1,500 provided. Who will start it?

Who will volunteer to help the student nurses to get their equipment and pay for their fare?

Student nurses are required to furnish their own equipment and pay fare to hospital school. This means an outlay of from $75 to $150 expense, according to the location of the hospital school, and in a great many cases the girls who wish to enroll as student nurses are kept from doing so on account of the expense necessary.

SHAPING PLANS FOR FOURTH LOAN DRIVE IN CITY AND COUNTY

COUNTY CHAIRMAN M. G. JEFFRIES OUTLINES PLANS FOR FOURTH LIBERTY LOAN CAMPAIGN

TO FIX QUOTA SOON

Treasury To Announce Amount Of Loan, And Local Quotas Will Then Be Fixed—Drive Opens On Sept. 25th.

Plans for the campaign for the fourth Liberty Loan in Rock County are now being outlined by the County Chairman, M. G. Jeffries. Campaign committees are again being organized and preparations made for an intensive drive to raise this district's quota.

The campaign officially opens Sept. 25th, but it is expected that the intensive drive in Janesville will come the week of Oct. 7. The city's quota cannot be definitely fixed until the Treasury department announces the amount of the loan, but if the loan is to be for $2,000,000, it is expected that Janesville's quota will figure out about $1,000,000.

The organization of the Janesville committee is to be practically the same as it was in the last drive. A revised card index will be prepared covering the record in the past campaigns of every person in the city. These cards will be guides to the selling committees in the Fourth Loan campaign. As soon as the material for making the new index arrives, the local chairman, A. P. Lovejoy, will need a large number of volunteers to transfer and classify the material. He will appreciate it if any one who can do any of the work will phone him at his office, or if the work can be done at home.

The Women's Organization is under a separate head, but the two organizations will co-operate for the drive in Janesville. Mrs. H. A. Ford will again be chairman of the Women's Organization in this city.

George Wolcott of Beloit, has been made regional director for the Fourth Loan campaign. "The Liberty Loan campaign officials have refused to accept resignations or withdrawals from a number of the workers who have felt it was some other person's turn to do the work, and they will not draw from the work who die or go to war. It is expected therefore, that all those who served in last year's drive will be lined up to push through the Fourth Loan drive. Nevertheless, many more workers are needed and anyone who can volunteer either for work in the selling organization, or for clerical and office work, is urged to hand his or her name to Mr. Lovejoy, or to Mrs. Ford, as there is work for everybody.

PRIV. HARRIS HEBEL GASED IN BATTLE

Janesville Soldier Receives Dose of Him Poison Gas—Writes From Red Cross Hospital.

A dose of Him poison gas put Private Harris Hebel, Janesville soldier in a Red Cross hospital, after the opening of the battle of Lorraine in July. Private Hebel writes from the hospital at Limoges, France, telling of the battle in which he was gassed, and the conditions in the hospital for but a short time. His letter reads as follows:

"I am in a hospital at Limoges just now. I got a couple of swallows of some of Fritz's poison gas up at the front. We were in a big battle then. The Germans started but couldn't finish. They bombarded us for twelve hours with gas, shrapnel, and high explosive shells all mixed up. The reason I am living now is due to the fact that I stayed in a trench about six feet deep. It started about twelve, midnight, and didn't let up until about three. I was hit by an attack in the morning, but I guess the only Germans left around there now are dead ones.

"It was in Paris a couple of days and it is sure a fine place. I saw most of the government buildings and the Eiffel tower, which you see pictures of so often. I think I will be back at the front pretty soon."

Priv. Harris Hebel, Co. C, 4th Infantry.

EXAMINATIONS WILL BE HELD FOR CARRIERS

Announcement has been made by United States civil service commission that an examination for Rock County will be held at Janesville, Edgerton and Beloit on September 25th. The examination will be held for the purpose of filling the vacancies of rural carriers at Edgerton and Beloit.

Forms and application blanks may be obtained from the post offices or from the United States civil service commission at Washington, D. C.

The vacancy for which the examination is announced is caused by the enlistment of the carriers. The carrier upon his honorable discharge from the army will be entitled to reinstatement to his former position.

A provision has been made by the Postal Department such that any one who has entered military service of the United States will be given his position upon being honorably discharged from the service of the United States.

FORMER JANESVILLE MAN IS KILLED IN AN ACCIDENT AT MILTON

Harry Emmons, Well Known Garage Man, Dead From Injuries Sustained In Bad Accident Yesterday—Was Run Over By Auto.

Harry Emmons of this city, formerly employed at the Kemmerer garage, is dead as a result of an automobile accident at Milton yesterday morning. He was run over by a car driven by Elwood Shumway. In passing, through some confusion in turning out, Emmons got in front of the car and was knocked to the street, all four wheels of the car passing over his body.

He was given immediate medical attention by Doctors Croxley and Campbell, but all efforts to save his life were futile. He passed away at three-thirty o'clock.

HAS NEW METHOD TO HANDLE NEXT DRAFT

A new method for handling claims for exemption from military service under the new draft is being worked out under the direction of Provost Marshal Gen. Crowder to govern the classification of men between 18 and 45, who will register on Sept. 12.

The new method is based upon the change of a few words in the original draft law made in passing the new man power act. The term "industrial occupation" is eliminated and the new word "service" is substituted. This change is being made to give deferred classification when engaged "in occupation or employment, including agriculture, which can be established as necessary to the maintenance of the national interest."

Bankers are Exempted. This section, officials pointed out today, will definitely allow district exemption boards to exempt bankers and essential bank employees, men engaged in necessary commercial enterprise, and necessary service to the community, including organizations, The regulations will not attempt specifically to define the status of the registrants who shall be entitled to exemption, but will allow the boards to work out the details after the authorization, has been given them.

It was said that the regulations would straighten out district boards in various localities have ruled, under the old law, that railroads and banks are not necessary to the national interest, and that materials and his staff are not engaged in industry. Since the requirement that a man exempted because of his occupation must be of importance as to the nation, the exemption has been retained, however, the sum total of exemptions is not expected to seriously affect the man power which will finally be placed in class I.

Three Advisers for Boards. District boards in applying occupational exemption regulations will have the assistance of three advisers: industrial, commercial and agricultural, who are now being nominated in every district.

Only minor changes are incorporated in the revised questionnaire which the registrants of Sept. 12 will be required to fill out. It strikes out the requirement that city police and men be in service the year before being entitled to deferred classification and allows them to be placed in class 3 without regard to their length of service.

It establishes also three new divisions in class 5, exempting automatically persons discharged from military or naval service "upon ground of alienage or upon diplomatic request" persons who are citizens of countries co-belligerent with the United States who come under treaty arrangements entitling their service at home and citizens of neutral countries who have withdrawn declarations of their intention to become citizens.

Make Formal Claim. The questionnaire still requires that each registrant who desires exemption shall make formal claim and present detailed facts substantiating it.

Provisions for the registering of men within the age limits of the new draft will be held on Sept. 12 were announced today by Provost Marshal General Crowder. Any man who is unable to appear for registration may send someone else to the draft board, and where the board is satisfied the case is bona fide the representative will be deputized to make out the card and the registrant's report. The word "service" will be written on the card, which on being delivered to the registrant must be mailed or taken to the local board having jurisdiction.

THREE DEALERS NOT IN ACCORD WITH PLAN

Three Janesville Dealers Continue To Violate One Delivery A Day Plan Despite Agreement.

C. J. Smith, secretary of the Rock County Council of Defense has received the following communication from J. B. Borden, Executive Secretary of the National Defense Council, containing the report made to Madison of several business houses in the city who have practically ignored the one delivery a day order. Of all the retailers in the city, so far as records show, there are three who are not in sympathy with the one delivery a day plan and who apparently at every opportunity are violating the plan. The report from Mr. Borden explains itself and characterizes the selfish individual:

Mr. C. J. Smith, Secretary, County Council of Defense, Janesville, Wisconsin.

Dear Mr. Smith:

In response to your letter of August 31st with reference to the requirements of the government, permit me to say that the federal government strenuously urges that all retail merchants in any way connected with the delivery of a day each route for all forms of retail merchandise, and further recommends strongly that the merchants in any city join and form a cooperative delivery system.

In the 25th bulletin issued by the Council of National Defense the statement is made that "The Division's program contemplates the establishment of a cooperative delivery system wherever possible. In practically all smaller places co-operative delivery for all goods is being established. Where a co-operative delivery system, whether privately or collectively owned, is in existence and giving a satisfactory service, as many as possible should be of the service and thus make each community's contribution of men material or equipment as large as possible for meeting the needs of the war. The plan of one delivery a day over each route."

As I understand the situation practically all the retailers have agreed to join in the establishment of a co-operative delivery system in the city of Janesville; that the city has been divided into zones and that the delivery of goods is making one delivery of goods in each zone. This arrangement is strictly in accordance with the government request. A regret, however, is that some of the retailers are unwilling to comply with the government's request and lend their support to the program of saving men and material, and thereby bringing a successful conclusion.

The men who are objecting to this program are directly thwarting the requests of the government and placing themselves in a position of opposition to the war program of this country. It would appear that these men are taking a very narrow view of this proposition and are unwilling to defer their private interests to the public interest. I sincerely hope that the merchants who are attempting to disrupt the plans for a co-operative delivery system will change their attitude. It is sure that they will fail to comprehend the fact that by taking this stand they are working against the government and indirectly aiding the enemy. It is the duty of every citizen to stand in opposition to what is best for the country as a whole. Our new draft will take many men and now as never before there is need of conservation of labor and material.

Surely the people of your city, when they understand what is behind this movement for one delivery a day will cheerfully and unhesitatingly support it with any curtailment of the privileges which they have been accustomed to enjoy during the peace times. The force of public opinion is the most powerful force in the world when the people of your city come to understand the situation that they will back your Council in its demand that all merchants comply with the plan of the federal government for one delivery a day.

Yours very truly,
 State Council of Defense, Ex. Sec'y.
 By J. B. Borden.

Chicago Markets. Chicago, Sept. 6.—Packers had an inning in the hog market yesterday. The hog market was a little better, but the bulk of the crop sold from $19 down.

The 25c break merely heralded what will happen when the new crop begins moving. Traders are disposed to caution as the bearish attitude of the packer is not concealed and whenever shipping orders are light bear raids will be in order.

It is consensus of trade opinion that the hog market should have attained its present dizzy altitude. Wisconsin has a short pig crop, which may defer the readjustment process.

Excess of Junk Corn. The beef round-up on the range is furnishing needed army material, without much ado. Contracts could not have been made.

Packers are not accumulating beef in their freezers at these prices and the trade will be on a hand-to-mouth basis all winter.

Seventeen-dollar cattle were courted. Anything with quality was strong. Current cattle supply statistics are deceptive as the run carries an excess of junk.

The fact is accepted that the best meats must be used for military purposes, but the product of western cows selling $4 per cwt. below steers is actually supply of pork joints at a liberal supply of pork joints at Boston, New York and Philadelphia curtailed shipping demand for light hogs here. Boston and New York were sharply lower on both lambs and heavy mutton.

Fair to good stockers, $7.50@8.50. Good to choice calves, $17.50@19.00. About 24,000 hogs arrived with a single stock of 6,700 broke the market 25c. An early sale at $20 looked scratchy before the session was over, as shippers had few orders and traders were covered up with common ers.

The bulk sold below $19, as quality was poor, $18.25@18.75, packing and packing mixed being conspicuous. Good light and butchers mixed sold at $19.25@19.50 with picked hogs largely at $19.70@19.85.

APPRECIATES WORK OF CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

That the government appreciates the work of the Janesville Chamber of Commerce in respect to its accomplishment in making a housing survey in advance of an order from Washington was expressed yesterday by James Jenkins, representing the Homes Registration and Information Division of the United States Housing Corporation, Washington, who said that this city was one of the few municipalities in the country which had taken hold of this important matter in an efficient manner and had anticipated the work to be done.

Mr. Jenkins, in conference in the office of the Chamber of Commerce with President Culien, said that the spirit manifest here was testimony of the work of the city and its desire to forge ahead. He spoke of the necessity of properly housing the great number of workmen who will come to this city as a result of the new plant of the General Motors Corporation. "You're co-operation is appreciated," he said.

Were it not for the co-operation of Janesville women who actually made the house-to-house survey, the chamber would not have been able to have so quickly acquired the information. Appreciation is expressed for this service.

ARTILLERY DEVELOPMENT.

At the beginning of the war the French pinned their faith primarily on their light and very mobile guns, while the Germans relied more upon howitzers and other very heavy cannon. Without the latter they could never have smashed their way so easily through the best defenses of Belgium and France.

It would seem as if our allies had more than caught up with them on heavy guns now. During one recent month the British alone located and knocked out 1822 German batteries, flanking the same time the Germans succeeded in silencing but 743 British batteries, and many of these were able very soon to resume fire.

In earlier trench warfare there would be of from four days to two weeks of intense artillery preparation before beginning any infantry attack. The enemy trenches would be completely pulverized, a chaos of shell holes, when the infantry was sent over. The result merely was that the enemy had plenty of time to rush reserves to the spot. The Germans simply fell back into the trenches behind and little was gained.

Now the attack is not always preceded by an intense artillery preparation. If there are lines of wire entanglements, light guns may discharge shrapnel timed to burst just above the ground, so as to cut the wire without tearing a pine ground much. Where the ground is all torn to pieces by heavy artillery, it makes no more sense to dig a trench than to dig a ditch. It must be harder to operate tanks.

The German attacks of March 21 and May 27 made a great use of light mobile mortars, with a range of only three-fourths of a mile; firing high explosives this short distance with deadly effect. But while light guns have thus figured more largely in recent fighting, especially in the big battles when it comes to great fortified towns like Metz.

OUR NAVY.

Much has been said, and written about the army these stirring times, of the part our boys are playing "somewhere in France" to the direct neglect of the great naval force this nation has mustered into service comprised of so many of our youths from here at home. Let us quote an old sailor's opinion of the land war, and some of our own boys thinking the same way soon, when he says: "But for the land I hate it. Its only good to grow vegetables, and soft backs and fresh water and tar and timber, and breed children to make sailors out of. Why it is a sort of cooks galley, a kitchen they call it there. For the sea, the world is a new sight of blue water, and let me have the solid feel of the deck beneath my feet, no unsteady earth for me."

There you have the old tar's idea of the land war and yet Rock County and Janesville have furnished hundreds of young men who are now in training or on the high seas. They never saw the ocean until they were assigned to a ship and they will be as good sailors as those whose baby stumblers were nursed by the slapping of the waves of the ocean.

We should be proud of our navy, that very interesting force that is of mushroom variety and still shows its youth. No nation in the world has more quickly assembled, drilled and equipped the same number of men than has the United States. They are just as essential as the armed forces fighting on land and when the time comes they can fight as landmen as well as the soldiers. Let us take of our love to the navy, and all its branches of service and every man who calls himself "Jackie."

DRILL.

To the soldiers who are called to the colors, there is no one word that is more expressive than this one "Drill" and yet means so much. Last year the students of the high school organized a high school battalion over a hundred young red blooded Americans who wanted to know how to march, how to carry arms and what to do if called upon by the federal government if needed. The bought their own uniforms and, if any organization of volunteers actually accomplished more than did these students in a shorter space of time, it would be hard to locate them.

The officers and non-commissioned officers of the Wisconsin State Guard, now Company G of the 8th regiment, gathered the movement, gave them drill room in the armory, gave them the best of instructors to teach them the rudiments of the drill and added as best they could. The school year closed last June and the company was disbanded but today the new school year has opened and these boys, who now are the citizens and soldiers of tomorrow are anxious to start drill again.

They mean business, these boys of the new army this nation will organize in a few years and they will be furnished and encouraged by the state guard officers who are trying to do their share in fitting men for the actual war service.

It is up to the citizens to take notice of this high school company and watch their progress and give the members all the courage and support they can. "Money Makes the Mare Go," and these boys deserve all the support possible. They meet on Tuesday night next to organize and prepare the coming year's work and beyond then should stand the moral, or financial aid if needed, until such time as the school board finds it is disposal to take care of this essential part of the education of the students of the public schools military training.

Those who find fault because not enough Pullman cars are run in this country, might like it better in France where our boys have to travel in cars used indiscriminately for men and horses.

The people who kick on having to pay cash in the stores would never in any way pay a separate charge for interest on the capital it takes for the merchant to cover all these small accounts.

It is suggested that some of the delays in our war work would be obviated by a more general disposition of the head men to occasionally substitute overalls for clean collars and cuffs.

The soldiers who get promotion are not the ones who criticize their superiors with the most ability but those who do their own job better than anyone expected.

In spite of the glorious victories the German official bulletin claims they are winning, they are very carefully preparing trenches far in the rear.

Intoxicated motorists should not object to jail sentences, as they will be much better off in prison than either in the hospital or the cemetery.

Now if some of the people that fear at Henry Ford will like him turn over their farm profits to the government, they can say what they please.

That Eastern Penn. man who was nearly mangled for twisting off a cat's tail has talents that would be appreciated in Germany.

The farm help won't work only eight hours a day now, as the farmer can always be depended upon to work twelve hours and finish things up.

The finest example of eloquence recently reported from Washington is the silence of some of the former pro-German congressmen.

With these accidental fires occurring at the army cantinments, it looks as if some one knew what the conditions were that produced the accident.

WHO'S WHO in the Day's News

PIROELLO H. LA GUARDIA.
A "dying congressman" is a novelty among the nation's law-makers in Washington.

There is but one of them. He is Piroello H. La Guardia of New York and is commanding officer of one of the American aviation camps in Italy.

Recently he made his first solo flight in a Caproni airplane.

Before he left for the war zone he was announced he would be a candidate for re-election while fighting in Italy. He has asked congress to permit him to serve his country on the fighting line and he has been elected.

The action finally taken on his request will decide whether two services for the government at once are possible. He was born in 1882, receiving his early education in the schools of Prescott, Ariz. Subsequently he attended the New York University law school and was graduated in 1910 with high honors.

He saw consular service in Budapest, Hungary, and Trieste, Austria, and other European cities.

For three years he was an interpreter at the Ellis Island Immigration Station.

Later he became deputy attorney general of the state of New York.

When he ran for congress two years ago he received the endorsement of the Progressive and American parties and was elected by a big plurality.

Politically he is a republican.

"Kissing," says Dr. Copeland, "is very dangerous"—and he is right. We know it cost a friend of ours $10,000 once.

"But," continues the doctor, "you may kiss through a handkerchief."—Just as satisfactory as drinking beer or eating papier mache chocolate cake.

A LITTLE SLICE OF LIFE.
The girl cigar clerk was having rough weather. She didn't know whether "Clare" was light or dark or whether a "Colorado Maduro" was a chewing tobacco or a non-absorbent pipe.

Some customers held her. One brute asked her for some nice vanilla cigars. And some pineapple snuff. She didn't have time to notice her nose.

And there was no mirror. And she had missed lunch. And the crowd kept growing and her feet hurt.

Some one asked for panettas and she told him it was not a lingerie shop. Then came a fuzzy cigar guy. And a customer asked her for some nice vanilla cigars.

But she didn't have his kind. "Take these. They are better." She said, showing some others. "What do you know about it?" Demanded the crusty old crab.

"My four brothers all smoke 'em. That's what I know about it." She replied, a little wistfully. "They are all—over there."

That's way I am selling cigars." The old man coughed and said: "Give me $10 worth of those, sis. I've got three sons over there."

And the Swiss Bell Ringers. The news was passed around. And now Lucile is the only cigar clerk on that street who can sell cigars and not get a beating.

The waiting line is a block long. Forget "Sammies" and "Buddies" and "Amexes" and "Johnnies." They want to be called "Yanks."

A bullet in the gun is not better than two in the Boche.

GARBAGE QUESTION DISCUSSED LAST NIGHT

Committee From City Council Met With Chamber of Commerce Committee To Discuss Question.

Last night in the office of the Chamber of Commerce the Garbage Disposal Committee of the City Council met jointly with the Garbage Disposal Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the City Attorney.

It was pointed out that even as Janesville now is the privilege of collecting garbage is a most desirable from a business point of view. As feed for swine, it has been proved by government survey, and is the experience of many cities, that the returns are very large.

The committee adjourned to again meet Saturday night at eight o'clock and they urge that anyone who is desirous of information concerning the collection of garbage with the city and interested in collection of city garbage, is invited to be present. An ordinance is in process of making and bids will be asked for following its adoption by City Council.

With the greater city in view the garbage disposal will be a paying business and, as a matter of fact, the city might well consider entering into the business of it is said. To qualify a man must provide a suitable bond and be equipped to meet with the requirements of the health officer, and must comply with the rules of the city and ordinance or be subject to a fine.

It was pointed out at this meeting that the present aliphod method of collecting garbage was not only unsanitary but that there was no uniform method of conducting the present business. Under the new ordinance this will be corrected.

WILLIAM MOSHER GETS YEAR IN JAIL

Old Time Police Character Given Heavy Sentence in the Municipal Court This Morning by Judge Maxfield.

William (Butch) Mosher, an old time character was sentenced to one year in the city jail by Judge Maxfield, after a hearing in the municipal court when he was arraigned on a charge of drunkenness.

Mosher has been before Judge Maxfield several times and just recently paid one of one hundred dollars and costs in the federal court at Madison for selling liquor to soldiers.

Judge Maxfield had a hard time and after Mosher and many times when taken into court he has been given a light sentence with the hope that he would mend his ways. He returned from Madison about a week ago and immediately started on a spree. He was taken into custody last evening and on his plea of guilty this morning he was sentenced.

Quinn had the appearance of a man who was not a habitual drinker and he was not arrested before. He recently came to Janesville to work and he told the judge that he had a son in the Rainbow division in France and two other boys in the service.

Judge Maxfield gave him a short lecture and urged him to keep away from the liquor and try and make himself worthy of his boys who were doing their bit for Uncle Sam. He took the pledge for one year from the judge and the charge was dismissed.

It might have cost Andrew Anderson, an employee of a South Janesville hotel, more but Andrew was very truthful and admitted that he had been souse several times before. He has given a fine of ten dollars and cost or fifteen days on his plea of guilty.

Mrs. Erickson who pleaded not guilty to a charge of drunkenness in the court yesterday morning, had her trial this morning and on the evidence presented by Officer Cady she was found guilty. She was given twenty-five dollars and cost or thirty days.

SCORES APPLY FOR HUNTING LICENSES

No Blanks Have Been Received So County Clerk Howard Lee Is Unable to Issue Any Licenses to Hunters.

Applications for hunting licenses are rapidly pouring into the office of County Clerk Howard Lee but as yet no blanks have been received for the reason that the blanks have not arrived from Madison. Federal modifications of the state game laws have upset all plans to some extent causing in some cases delays.

The open season for the hunting of rabbits and wild geese starts tomorrow while the season on ducks, mudhens, and brant geese does not open until the sixteenth of September. There will be no open season this year for woodcock and swans.

Mr. Simmons is in the employ of the Brittingham and Horton Lumber company here. The couple are both well known in Janesville and will make their future home here.

BELOIT INSPECTORS' ERROR HALTS CANVASS

Canvass of the primary election returns in Rock county was made today by a board of canvassers consisting of County Clerk Howard Lee and Supervisors W. L. Crandall and W. W. Dalton. An error on the part of the election inspectors in the city of Beloit in the tally sheets and ballots in the same bag and sealing it makes it impossible to announce the final results. The canvassing board has the power under law to open the bag and it will be necessary to have Beloit inspectors open it. This will be done tomorrow, so that it is probable that the final vote for all candidates will be made known at that time.

INJURIES RECEIVED IN FALL ARE FATAL TO YOUNG BOY OF 5

Little Son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Kaempfe Dies As Result of Fall at School Grounds.

George Kaempfe, aged 5 years, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Kaempfe of 1315 Highland avenue passed away at the home last evening at 8 o'clock, as the result of injuries received to his head in a fall yesterday afternoon at the Washington school playgrounds.

The little lad fell from a teeter board while playing with other children at the Washington school, striking his head on the ground and causing a hemorrhage of the brain. He walked into the school building to the fifth grade room, where his sister Dorothy was, to tell her he was hurt, and then fainted. He was taken to the hospital and became unconscious soon after arriving there. He did not again regain consciousness, in spite of the best medical attention and the efforts of the grief-stricken parents, and at 8 o'clock he passed to his Maker.

George was an exceptionally bright little fellow, being in the first grade and was highly spoken of by his teachers and school mates. He was loved by all throughout the neighborhood near his home, and the greatest sympathy is extended to his bereaved mother, he leaves to mourn his loss one sister Dorothy, and many other close relatives.

A formal announcement will be made tomorrow.

RURAL SCHOOLS TO OPEN NEXT MONDAY

BARRACKS FOR 1,000 MEN.
ERECTED BY UNIVERSITY.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 5.—Barracks for 1,000 men are now under construction at the University of Wisconsin to house the soldiers who are sent to the university for technical training. The work began last week and the barracks must be completed by Nov. 15, for the fourth detachment which will arrive at that time.

The barracks are on the site of the old grandstand at Camp Randall, adjoining the site of the Civil War camp. They will house the soldiers in the special training department, which are being sent to the university for two-month training periods. After the war they will probably be used in reconstruction work for the returned soldiers.

Seven buildings are being erected, each 30 by 134 feet and two stories high. Officers' barracks and a hospital will probably be erected soon. The cost between $70,000 and $90,000, paid for by the university but to be returned by the government in monthly payments for quarters and mess.

The church of the construction work is being done by soldiers in the carpentry class of the detachment now in training. Plans and specifications were supplied by the government and the university architect is directing the work.

The buildings of the barracks will release the gymnasium and a large university use, but the mess-hall in the athletic annex is now being enlarged to accommodate 1,000 men.

Daily Thought.
The happiness of your life, and its power, and its part or rank in earth or in heaven, depend on the way you pass your days now.—Ruskin.

Typhoid Epidemic.
Eau Claire.—Durand, Pepin county is in the throes of a typhoid fever epidemic of mysterious origin which has already claimed one victim, Sarah Cassidy, 14 years old daughter of Dr. Cassidy of that city, who died at an Eau Claire hospital. The epidemic broke out suddenly about a week ago and there are now more than fifteen cases, most of them of a very serious nature.

That the epidemic was due to impure or contaminated drinking water was the belief at first but analysis of samples failed to reveal anything. The persons stricken, with a few exceptions, move in the same social circle. It is said, and investigation is being made on theories based on this.

CHAPTER I.

The Ray of Sunlight.

Just as the rays of the afternoon sun hesitated to enter the open door of Joseph Stagg's hardware store in Sunrise Cove and lingered on the sill, so the little girl in the black frock and hat, with twin braids of sun-blonde hair on her shoulders, hovered at the entrance of the dim and dusty place.

She carried a satchel in one hand, while the fingers of the other were hooked into the river-studded collar of a motored, homely mongrel dog.

"Oh, dear me, Prince," sighed the little girl, "this must be the place. We'll just have to go in. Of course I know he must be a nice man; but he's such a stranger."

Her feet faltered over the door sill and pined slowly down the shop between long counters. She saw no clerk.

At the back of the shop was a small office closed in with grim windows. The uncertain visitor and her canine companion saw the shadowy figure of a man inside the office, sitting on a high stool and bent above a big ledger.

The dog, however, sensed something else.

In the half darkness of the shop he and his little mistress came unexpectantly upon what Prince considered his enemy. There rose up on the end of the counter nearest the open door a big, black totem whose necked back, swollen tail and yellow eyes blazed defiance.

"Ps-s-s—ye-ow!"

The rising yowl broke the silence of the shop like a trumpet call. "The little girl dropped her bag and seized the dog's collar with both hands.

"Prince!" she cried, "don't you speak to that cat—don't you dare speak to it!"

"Bless me!" croaked a voice from the office.

The totem uttered a second "ps-s-s—ye-ow!" and shot up a ladder to the top shelf.

"Bless me!" repeated Joseph Stagg, asking off his eyeglasses and leaving them in the ledger to mark his place. "What have you brought that dog in here for?"

"He came to the office door."

"I—I didn't have any place to leave him," was the hesitating reply.

"Hum!" Did your mother send you for something?"

"No, sir," sighed the little visitor. At that moment a more daring ray of sunlight found its way through the grating over the store door and lit up the dusky place. It fell upon the slight, black-freckled figure and for an instant touched the pretty head as with an aureole.

"Bless me, child!" exclaimed Mr. Stagg. "Who are you?"

Thought One Clean Shirt All He Needed

"Ten years ago I was reduced to a mere shadow. I was yellow as a gold piece and would often be doubled up with most excruciating pains in my stomach. Physicians could only relieve me with morphine. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I took them and in a few days I was able to get up and about. I have been well ever since. A friend said he thought one more clean shirt all I would ever wear." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes pain, indigestion, nervousness, etc. One box will restore you to health. Alkali Makes Soap Bad For Washing Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The howler race of the little girl quivered, the blue eyes spilled big drops over her cheeks. She approached Mr. Stagg, stooping and squinting in the office doorway, and placed a timid hand upon the broad band of black crepe he wore on his coat sleeve.

"You're not Hannah's Carlyn?" questioned the hardware dealer huskily.

"I'm Carlyn May Cameron," she confessed. "You're my Uncle Joe. I'm very glad to see you, Uncle Joe, and—"

"and I hope—you're glad to see me—and Prince," she finished rather falteringly.

"Bless me!" murmured the man again.

Nothing so startling as this had entered Sunrise Cove's chief "hardware emporium" for many and many a year.

Hannah Stagg, the hardware merchant's only sister, had gone away from home quite fifteen years previously. Mr. Stagg had never seen Hannah again; but this slight, blue-eyed, sunny-haired girl was a replica of his sister, and in some dusty corner of Mr. Stagg's heart there dwelt a very faithful memory of Hannah.

Nothing had served to estrange the brother save time and distance.

"Hannah's Carlyn," muttered Mr. Stagg again. "Bless me, child! how did you get here from New York?"

"On the cars, uncle. You see, Mr. Price thought I'd better come. He says you are my guardian—it's in papa's will and would have been so in mama's will, if she'd made one. Mr. Price put me on the train and the conductor took care of me."

"Who is Mr. Price?" the storekeeper asked.

"He's a lawyer. He's written you a long letter about it. It's in my bag. Didn't you get the telegram he sent you last evening, Uncle Joe? A 'night letter,' he called it."

"Never got it," replied Mr. Stagg shortly.

"Well, you see, when papa and mama had to go away so suddenly they left me with the Prices. I went to school with Edna Price and she slept with me at night in our flat—after the Dunraven sailed."

"But—what did this lawyer send you up here for?" asked Mr. Stagg.

The question was a poser and Carolyn May stammered: "I—I—Don't guardians always take their little girls home and look out for them?"

"Hum—I don't know." The hardware merchant mused grimly. "I—I guess we'd better go up to The Corners and see what Auntie Rose has to say about it. You understand, I couldn't really keep you if she says 'No.'"

"Oh, Uncle Joe, couldn't you?"

"No," he declared, wagging his head decidedly. "And what she'll say to that dog!"

"Oh!" Carolyn May cried again, and put both arms suddenly about the neck of her canine friend. "Prince is just the best dog, Uncle Joe."

Mr. Stagg shook his head doubtfully. Then he went into the office and shut the big ledger into the safe. After locking the safe door, he slipped the key into his trousers pocket and glanced around the store.

"I'd like to know where that useless Corners boy is now," muttered Mr. Stagg.

"What? Hey! you Chet?"

"To Carolyn May's amazement and to the utter mystification of Prince, a section of the floor under their feet began to rise.

"Oh, mercy me!" squealed the little girl, and she hopped off the trapdoor; but the dog uttered a quick, threatening growl and put his muzzle to the widening aperture.

"Hey! call off that dog!" heged a muffled voice from under the trapdoor. "He'll eat me up, Mr. Stagg."

"Lie down, Prince!" commanded Carolyn May hastily. "It's only a boy. You know you like boys, Prince," she urged.

"Come on up out of that cellar, Chet. I'm going up to The Corners with my little niece—Hannah's Carlyn. This is Chetwood Gormley. If he ever stops growing longitudinally he'll be a man some day and not a giant. You stay right here and tend store while I'm gone, Chet."

Carolyn May could not help feeling some surprise at the finally revealed proportions of Chetwood Gormley. He was lathlike and gawky, with very prominent upper front teeth, which gave a sort of bow-window appearance to his wide mouth. But there was a good-humored twinkle in the overgrown boy's shallow eyes; and, if uncouth, he was kind.

"I'm proud to know ye, Carlyn," he said. He stepped quickly out of the way of Prince when the latter started for the front of the store.

Once out of the shop in the sunlit street, the little girl breathed a sigh of relief. Mr. Stagg, peering down at her sharply, asked:

"What's the matter?"

"I—I—Your shop is awful dark, Uncle Joe," she confessed. "I can't seem to look up in there."

"Look up?" repeated the hardware dealer, puzzled.

"Oh, there's a carpenter shop!" exclaimed Carolyn May. "And is that the carpenter, Uncle Joe?"

A tall old man, lean-faced and closely shaven, with a hawk's-bank nose straddled by a huge pair of silver-bowed spectacles, came out of the shop at that moment, a jackknife in his hand. He saw Mr. Stagg and, turning sharply on his heel, went indoors again.

"Who is he, Uncle Joe?" repeated the little girl. "And, if I asked him, do you s'pose he'd give me some of those nice, long, curly shavings?"

"That's Jed Parlow—and he wouldn't give you any shavings; especially after having seen you with me," said the hardware merchant brusquely.

The pretty lady whose name was Parlow and the queer-looking old carpenter, whose name was likewise Parlow, would neither look at Uncle Joe! Even such a little girl as Carolyn May could see that her uncle and the Parlows were not friendly.

By and by they came in sight of The Corners—a place where another road crossed this one at right angles.

In one corner was a white church with a square tower and green blinds. In another of the four corners was set a big store, with a covered porch all across the front, on which were sheltered certain agricultural tools.

There was no sound of life at The Corners save a rhythmic "clank, clank, clank" from the blacksmith shop on the third corner.

On the fourth corner of the cross-roads stood the Stagg homestead—a wide, low-roofed house of ancient appearance, yet in good repair. Neatness was the keynote of all about the place.

"Is this where you live, Uncle Joe?" asked Carolyn May breathlessly. "Oh, what a beautiful big place! It seems awful big for me to live in!"

Mr. Stagg had halted at the gate and now looked down upon Carolyn May with perplexed brow. "Well, we've got to see about that first," he muttered. "There's Auntie Rose—"

A voice calling, "Chuck! Chuck! Chuck-a-chuck!" came from behind the old house. A few white-feathered fowls that had been in sight scurried wildly away in answer to the summons.

Mr. Stagg, still looking at the little girl, set down the bag and reached for the dog's leash. The loop of the latter he passed around the gatepost.

"I tell you what it is, Carolyn May. You'd better meet Auntie Rose first alone. I've my fears about this murrel."

"Oh, Uncle Joe!" quivered his niece.

First Principle of Effort.

The great principle of effort is to endeavor to do, not what is absolutely best, but what is easily within our power and adapted to our temper and condition.—John Ruskin.

Dinner Stories

For nine long years he had been wooing the fair daughter of the farm.

"Jennie," he mused, as they sat on the old fence, "I read the other day that in a thousand years the lakes of Killarney will dry up."

Jennie chuckled his arm excitedly. "Oh, Tom!" she exclaimed.

"What's the matter, lass?"

"Why, as you promised to take me there on our honeymoon, don't you think we'd better be a little careful that they don't dry up before we get there?"

A man whose every word and action betokened a son of the soil stepped up to the booking office of a provincial railway station. After a cheery "Good mornin' to ye!" he asked the clerk for a ticket to London.

"You will have a return, won't you?" inquired the clerk.

"What do you say?"

"Why, you'll want to come back, won't you?"

"No, that I shan't; but ye'd better give me a return, all the same."

"But, expostulated the clerk, 'if you don't want to come back it's only a waste of money!'"

"Look 'ere, young man," replied the old fellow, in a tone of subdued confidence, "that's my business. I sartainly shan't want to come back; but I shall just as sartainly have to!"

"Thump-rattle-bang!" went the piano.

"What are you trying to play, Jane?" called out her father from the next room.

"It's an exercise from my new instruction book, 'First Steps in Music,'" she answered.

"Well, I knew you were playing with your feet," he said, grimly. "But don't step so heavily on the keys—it disturbs my thoughts."

"Oh, there's a carpenter shop!" exclaimed Carolyn May. "And is that the carpenter, Uncle Joe?"

A tall old man, lean-faced and closely shaven, with a hawk's-bank nose straddled by a huge pair of silver-bowed spectacles, came out of the shop at that moment, a jackknife in his hand. He saw Mr. Stagg and, turning sharply on his heel, went indoors again.

"Who is he, Uncle Joe?" repeated the little girl. "And, if I asked him, do you s'pose he'd give me some of those nice, long, curly shavings?"

"That's Jed Parlow—and he wouldn't give you any shavings; especially after having seen you with me," said the hardware merchant brusquely.

The pretty lady whose name was Parlow and the queer-looking old carpenter, whose name was likewise Parlow, would neither look at Uncle Joe! Even such a little girl as Carolyn May could see that her uncle and the Parlows were not friendly.

By and by they came in sight of The Corners—a place where another road crossed this one at right angles.

In one corner was a white church with a square tower and green blinds. In another of the four corners was set a big store, with a covered porch all across the front, on which were sheltered certain agricultural tools.

There was no sound of life at The Corners save a rhythmic "clank, clank, clank" from the blacksmith shop on the third corner.

On the fourth corner of the cross-roads stood the Stagg homestead—a wide, low-roofed house of ancient appearance, yet in good repair. Neatness was the keynote of all about the place.

"Is this where you live, Uncle Joe?" asked Carolyn May breathlessly. "Oh, what a beautiful big place! It seems awful big for me to live in!"

Mr. Stagg had halted at the gate and now looked down upon Carolyn May with perplexed brow. "Well, we've got to see about that first," he muttered. "There's Auntie Rose—"

A voice calling, "Chuck! Chuck! Chuck-a-chuck!" came from behind the old house. A few white-feathered fowls that had been in sight scurried wildly away in answer to the summons.

Mr. Stagg, still looking at the little girl, set down the bag and reached for the dog's leash. The loop of the latter he passed around the gatepost.

"I tell you what it is, Carolyn May. You'd better meet Auntie Rose first alone. I've my fears about this murrel."

"Oh, Uncle Joe!" quivered his niece.

Dinner Stories

For nine long years he had been wooing the fair daughter of the farm.

"Jennie," he mused, as they sat on the old fence, "I read the other day that in a thousand years the lakes of Killarney will dry up."

Jennie chuckled his arm excitedly. "Oh, Tom!" she exclaimed.

"What's the matter, lass?"

"Why, as you promised to take me there on our honeymoon, don't you think we'd better be a little careful that they don't dry up before we get there?"

A man whose every word and action betokened a son of the soil stepped up to the booking office of a provincial railway station. After a cheery "Good mornin' to ye!" he asked the clerk for a ticket to London.

"You will have a return, won't you?" inquired the clerk.

"What do you say?"

"Why, you'll want to come back, won't you?"

"No, that I shan't; but ye'd better give me a return, all the same."

"But, expostulated the clerk, 'if you don't want to come back it's only a waste of money!'"

"But it's past twelve!" Jonas insisted, pointing to the clock.

"Oh, I know that! That proves it's a love match, doesn't it?"

"Come here, Hall, and stand up by me! Anyone would think you didn't want to get married!" Flodie called nervously.

By this time the company had begun to enter, and soon flooded the studio, laughing, wondering, joking with Hall.

"Go ahead!" cried Flodie. "We're ready, Mr. Doremus, quick!" She stamped her foot angrily.

"Oh, wait a minute," Hall interposed. "We want this thing arranged a little. It won't do to rush it. He turned to his guests. 'Ladies and gentlemen,' he began, when Jonas broke in again.

"See here, I object to this!" He walked up to Mr. Doremus angrily.

Mr. Doremus, however, had already begun to thunder out. "Hall Bonistelle, do you take this woman, Flodie Fisher, to be your wedded wife?"

"Just wait a minute!" cried Jonas, looking at his watch.

"We're off!" came in a chorus from the excited guests.

"I do!" replied Hall. "See here, Jonas, you mustn't interrupt the game, you know. Sit down and be quiet!"

"But I got something to say about it—"

"Flodie Fisher, do you take—be quiet, Mr. Hassingbury. I'm running this."

"It's a scheme! It's a fraud!" Jonas appealed wildly to the company. "This man to be your lawful wedded husband?"

"Oh, you old scamp, you've sold me out!" Jonas shook his fist at the bride and was pulled furiously back by Alfred.

"I do!" Flodie screamed. "I never, Mr. Hassingbury! I only promised to prevent his marrying the others! I never said—"

"Put on the ring! Put on the ring!" the company screamed laughingly to Hall. He obeyed.

"Then I pronounce you man and wife!"

"I never said I wouldn't get him my self!" Flodie's words were smothered in Hall's kiss.

Immediately she was surrounded by the gentlemen of the company, who passed her from lip to lip, protesting, laughing, struggling to speak.

Mr. Doremus pressed Hall's hand. "I congratulate you, Mr. Bonistelle!" he cried enthusiastically.

"Thank you, sir!" Hall answered. "I've got a fortune in Flodie."

"I think you have! Twof!" was Mr. Doremus' reply. "Mr. Hassingbury would you mind telling me what time it is?"

Jonas turned white, and started hurriedly to leave without a word. Flodie, alert, caught him as he turned, and snatched out his watch as deftly as a pickpocket. She held it up to the company. "We've won! Eleven fifty-nine!" she shouted.

The company took it up, and shouted, too. Watches were brought out from a dozen pockets, compared and the time corroborated.

"It's a lie!" Jonas protested, "why look at the clock! It's half past twelve! He's too late I tell you! The money's mine!"

"Why, that's right!" said Hall, amazed by the sudden confusion. "I set that clock myself!"

"But I told you what time to set it!" Flodie fairly yelled now. "And I told you half an hour ahead on purpose!"

Mr. Doremus held up his hand. "Silence!" he thundered. "Mr. Hassingbury, he declared solemnly, 'there are witnesses enough present to prove that Mr. Bonistelle was married before midnight. As you are aware, I seldom take sides in any controversy, but in this case, my little friend here, Flodie—Bonistelle—completely won me over. There's no possible doubt that Mr. Bonistelle will inherit his uncle's fortune.'"

Hall burst out of his trance with a whoop. "Hurrah!" he screamed. "I've won four millions of dollars!"

Flodie stretched up on tiptoe and pulled down his dramatically extended hand. "No, sir," she announced. "I won it myself!"

THE END.

CUBS AND RED SOX EACH ENGAGING IN 5TH WORLD'S SERIES

The Cubs and Red Sox entered a mighty contest when they won the pennants this season.

"They are now engaged in their fifth world's series," said a modern world's series was begun back in 1903, and there are but two other teams which rank in this class. "These two teams are the Giants and the Athletics."

Incidentally, the Red Sox have been world's champion four times in the past. They have never been beaten in a modern world's series and of this win the present series it will be five straight for the Boston Americans.

The Philadelphia Athletics were the first major league to reach their over a period of fifteen years.

The world's series, which was reached in 1914 when they met the Braves, Connie Mack's team of the past have some record. They captured the American League pennant in 1905, 1910, 1911, 1912 and 1914, and won three world's championships in 1910, 1911 and 1913.

The Giants won their first National League pennant under modern conditions in 1905, and grabbed their only world's championship that year, when they trimmed the Mack team, thanks to Matty's wonderful pitching. In 1911, 1912, 1913 and 1917, the Men of McGraw captured National League pennants.

The Cubs capped their first National League banner in 1906. The White Sox were the American League champs that year and the Cubs got trounced. But in 1907 and 1908, Frank Chance's brigade took the measure of the Detroit Tigers. Again Sox and southerners outlasted (motion picture) again again, and in 1909, Sox and Athletics. This year's series is being held in the post-season games, their fifth.

The Red Sox won the first modern world's series in 1916, beating the Pirates. They did not figure as American League champions again until 1912, but they grabbed the world's championship by trimming the Giants in 1915. The Pirates were the victims of the Red Sox, but the Dodgers took an unmerciful beating at their hands in 1916. Now the Red Sox are playing their fifth world's series, can they make it five straight?

HUGH S. MILLER WOUNDED IN FRANCE

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 5.—Playing in a world series is a "mere trifle" compared to being decorated by one's country, Hugh S. Miller of St. Louis, former Federal League and American League pitcher, was wounded in France, writes to a friend here.

"You know it is every ballplayer's ambition to play in a world series," Miller writes. "Well, I had such dreams, too, picturing myself a hero before a large crowd. But, say, that is a mere trifle compared to being decorated by one's country."

It was I was decorated by Gen. Pershing with the Distinguished Service Cross and given a real handshake by the general himself.

"I had wonderful feeling. It was the greatest moment of my life. I shall never forget it. I captured two German, one an officer, from whom we got good information. They were the first prisoners our regiment got."

In the last big drive Miller was wounded.

SUGGEST THAT FRESHIES BE ALLOWED TO PLAY

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 5.—With the approach of the football season, one of the most important questions that collegiate football authorities is the suggestion that freshmen be permitted to play on the regular varsity teams. It is pointed out that wartime activities have made great inroads in the ranks of college athletes, and that the calibre of football teams this fall likely would be far below those of previous years.

While no formal move in the question has been taken up by any of the large collegiate conferences, unofficial opinions of athletic directors and other authorities have shown a division on the question.

The first athletic head in Iowa to express himself definitely regarding the proposed change is the University of Iowa. The University of Iowa (Ames) college. He is opposed to permitting the freshmen to play at the larger colleges and universities, but thinks they should be allowed to compete at the small institutions.

There have been rumors that at least one school in the Missouri Valley conference had decided to let its coaching men compete, but so far no definite action has been taken, pending a formal move on the part of the conference officials.

MORRIS MILLER

The placing of professional baseball in the non-reserved class is going to result in more than simply releasing a large number of able-bodied young athletes for war service of some kind. Many of baseball's greatest stars and leaders who were not affected by the ruling are going to do their bit now that they know the government's position regarding their game.

Among men who have volunteered their services are:

Ty Cobb.

Christy Matheson.

Branch Rickey.

Matheson has received a captain's commission in the chemical warfare service for overseas duty. He sought the commission although he is married and has a son.

Ty Cobb, married, a father, also has been made a captain in the same branch.

Branch Rickey, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, has been granted a major's commission in the same service.

These men represent the highest type of men connected with baseball in any capacity.

Matheson can give the government use of a brain that made him the headest, most scientific pitcher in the game and, cunning and without equal in the history of the sport.

Cobb a different type, ought to be of equal value. His spirit, pep and unlimited ambition carried him to the pinnacle of baseball fame.

Branch Rickey is still a different type. He has been at the executive end. He has managed successfully a club that for years before his coming had been apparently a hopeless case.

Rickey is one of the new generation of baseball moguls, a leader and a thinker. He ought to be of great value.

Hughie Jennings is a recognized leader of men.

Baseball's representation in war is going to be increased rapidly, there is no doubt. The odium attached to the sport because of the earlier action of the moguls and players is going to be removed by such men as Cobb, Matty, Rickey and Jennings.

After playing fifteen seasons with the various teams that represented Cleveland in the American League, Terry Turner recently was given ten days' notice of his unconditional release. However, it is only a form which it was necessary for the Cleveland club to go through in order not to be obligated to pay Turner his salary from September 1st to October 15. The work of right order terminated contracts of players of that age. The war department, however, did not say that players over thirty-one should quit playing, so that migrants had to issue ten-day notices of release to veterans and Turner was among the number.

Yale will have a varsity football eleven this fall. There also will be a freshman team. The coach, the Blue veteran trainer, will have general supervision of the physical condition of the various players, and a graduate coach will be chosen some time next month. It is estimated that five hundred freshmen, who had the advantage of first-class interscholastic coaching in football last year, will be candidates for gridiron positions on the New Haven teams. While nothing has been done yet, Yale, Harvard, and Princeton may resume their football games, which were greatly missed by collegians last year.

Philip O. Mills, former Harvard university star gridiron performer, is the latest collegiate representative to give his life in the country's cause. Mills was reported killed a few days ago.

Larry Doyle welcomed the transfer from Cubs to Giants last spring, as he believed he was going to a pennant winner. Now Larry wishes he still was with the Cubs.

MANY STARS WILL COMPETE IN MEET

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Detroit, Sept. 5.—A number of the greatest amateur athletes the central west has produced are expected to participate in the Central Amateur Athletic Union outdoor track and field championships here Sept. 14. The meet will be staged on Belle Isle in the Detroit river about three miles from the heart of the city.

Among the stars expected to compete are several Central A. A. U. titleholders. Regarded as almost certain to be entered are Joe Ray, who holds national titles in the three-fourth mile and two mile events, Joe Loomis and Andy Ward, who hold records in sprints; Ed Knourek, national pole vault champion; Frank Loomis, champion low hurdler; and D. F. Ahorn, world's titleholder of the running hop, skip and jump. Ray will attempt to lower the world's one mile record, now held by Norman Taber.

Joe Loomis is a lieutenant in the army, being stationed at Camp Custer, near Battle Creek. Knourek will come with the team expected from the Great Lakes Naval Training station, where he is a yeoman.

Definite promises of representation have not yet been received from the University of Michigan or the University of Chicago. The Illinois A. C. has signified its intention of sending a good sized representation, including Joe Ray.

Ty Cobb, married, a father, also has been made a captain in the same branch.

Branch Rickey, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, has been granted a major's commission in the same service.

These men represent the highest type of men connected with baseball in any capacity.

Matheson can give the government use of a brain that made him the headest, most scientific pitcher in the game and, cunning and without equal in the history of the sport.

Cobb a different type, ought to be of equal value. His spirit, pep and unlimited ambition carried him to the pinnacle of baseball fame.

Branch Rickey is still a different type. He has been at the executive end. He has managed successfully a club that for years before his coming had been apparently a hopeless case.

Rickey is one of the new generation of baseball moguls, a leader and a thinker. He ought to be of great value.

Hughie Jennings is a recognized leader of men.

Baseball's representation in war is going to be increased rapidly, there is no doubt. The odium attached to the sport because of the earlier action of the moguls and players is going to be removed by such men as Cobb, Matty, Rickey and Jennings.

After playing fifteen seasons with the various teams that represented Cleveland in the American League, Terry Turner recently was given ten days' notice of his unconditional release. However, it is only a form which it was necessary for the Cleveland club to go through in order not to be obligated to pay Turner his salary from September 1st to October 15. The work of right order terminated contracts of players of that age. The war department, however, did not say that players over thirty-one should quit playing, so that migrants had to issue ten-day notices of release to veterans and Turner was among the number.

Yale will have a varsity football eleven this fall. There also will be a freshman team. The coach, the Blue veteran trainer, will have general supervision of the physical condition of the various players, and a graduate coach will be chosen some time next month. It is estimated that five hundred freshmen, who had the advantage of first-class interscholastic coaching in football last year, will be candidates for gridiron positions on the New Haven teams. While nothing has been done yet, Yale, Harvard, and Princeton may resume their football games, which were greatly missed by collegians last year.

Philip O. Mills, former Harvard university star gridiron performer, is the latest collegiate representative to give his life in the country's cause. Mills was reported killed a few days ago.

Larry Doyle welcomed the transfer from Cubs to Giants last spring, as he believed he was going to a pennant winner. Now Larry wishes he still was with the Cubs.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Detroit, Sept. 5.—A number of the greatest amateur athletes the central west has produced are expected to participate in the Central Amateur Athletic Union outdoor track and field championships here Sept. 14. The meet will be staged on Belle Isle in the Detroit river about three miles from the heart of the city.

F. Ahorn, world's titleholder of the running hop, skip and jump. Ray will attempt to lower the world's one mile record, now held by Norman Taber.

Joe Loomis is a lieutenant in the army, being stationed at Camp Custer, near Battle Creek. Knourek will come with the team expected from the Great Lakes Naval Training station, where he is a yeoman.

Definite promises of representation have not yet been received from the University of Michigan or the University of Chicago. The Illinois A. C. has signified its intention of sending a good sized representation, including Joe Ray.

SUGGEST THAT FRESHIES BE ALLOWED TO PLAY

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 5.—With the approach of the football season, one of the most important questions that collegiate football authorities is the suggestion that freshmen be permitted to play on the regular varsity teams. It is pointed out that wartime activities have made great inroads in the ranks of college athletes, and that the calibre of football teams this fall likely would be far below those of previous years.

While no formal move in the question has been taken up by any of the large collegiate conferences, unofficial opinions of athletic directors and other authorities have shown a division on the question.

The first athletic head in Iowa to express himself definitely regarding the proposed change is the University of Iowa. The University of Iowa (Ames) college. He is opposed to permitting the freshmen to play at the larger colleges and universities, but thinks they should be allowed to compete at the small institutions.

There have been rumors that at least one school in the Missouri Valley conference had decided to let its coaching men compete, but so far no definite action has been taken, pending a formal move on the part of the conference officials.

Tales of the Friendly Forest

Now let me see. In the story before this, if I remember right, little Billy Bunny went down to the cabbage field to find his father, but instead of finding him, he was almost caught by Daddy Fox. Now listen to me, for as long as the little rabbit got home safely, I'm going to tell you why he couldn't find Mr. William Bunn.

I promised in the story before this to tell you how Billy Bunny's father almost lost his overcoat.

And this is how it happened: That dreadful Miller's Boy happened to see as near as you please, the Miller's Boy ran back in to the mill to get his gun. And then he crept along the Old Snake Fence as softly as you please until he came as near as he dared. And wasn't that unkind of Willie Wind not to blow the other way so that Mr. William Bunn could have smelled the Miller's Boy? That is the way the wind tells the forest folk, you know. They bring the scent to the sharp noses of the little forest folk just like the postman brings you a letter.

Well, as soon as the Miller's Boy was near enough he lifted the gun to his shoulder and pointed it at Billy Bunny's father. Was not that dreadful? Well, I guess you would think that he didn't shoot straight and the bullet went up into the air and maybe it hit a star, for all I know.

And, of course, when Mr. William Bunn heard that gun he didn't wait to hear anything more. No, siree, man, and no siree, mister. He just hopped into the Friendly Forest as fast as he could. And now I suppose you will ask me how he almost lost his fur overcoat. Well, if that dreadful bullet had hit him the Miller's Boy would have skinned him and sold his fur, and the Miller's article would have made a nice rabbit stew, and that would have been the end of Billy Bunny's father.

Well, as soon as the old rabbit found himself in the Friendly Forest he hopped off for home, and he was just thinking how lucky he was when, all of a sudden, quicker than a skyrocket, Daddy Fox jumped out from behind a tree.

"Now I've got you!" he cried. "I just missed catching Billy Bunny, but I'll get the old rabbit!" And that dreadful fox gave a great, long leap, "Now, if he hadn't, said, 'Now I've got you!' he might have caught the old rabbit. But soon as Mr. William Bunn heard Daddy Fox's voice he took a skip and a jump, and when the wicked fox landed on the ground, on the very spot where the old rabbit had been a second before, there was nobody there. No, siree, man, Mr. William Bunn was safe inside an old hollow stump, and Daddy Fox was fooled again.

"You'd better go home, Mr. Daddy Fox," he said.

To your den on the hillside under the rocks.

And tell your children and tell your wife that old William Bunn has a charmed life!"

And when the old fox heard the rabbit sing this he grew so angry that he picked up a stone and threw it at the hollow stump, but he didn't hurt the stump a bit. And after that he ran home to his den and went to bed without any supper, he was so cross.
